OPPOSITION TO JIGLIOTTI'S NOTICE FOR EXTENSION

Comes now, the Appellees, Blooms and Moore, pro se, to respectfully oppose Appellant Jigliotti Family Trust's "NOTICE FOR EXTENSION" request for a fifteen day extension, to file Appellant's Reply Brief, filed on May 20, 2020.

The Appellants state the need for the extension "due to the need to address other work deadlines."

The Appellants initiated this case October 11, 2012, filed this appeal October 16, 2019, and have twice opposed Appellees request for time to supplement the record.

The court gives ample time to review the other side's briefs prior to the standard scheduled time for due dates. Appellants have known they are required to either file a reply brief or a notice that they do not intend to reply, since the initiation of this appeal. They offer no reason why there is a need to address "other work deadlines" that should take precedence over this matter, they were the ones who filed this appeal, in the Supreme Court of Alaska. They stated in their opposition to Appellee's motion to supplement the record, dated March 26, 2020, "This matter was initiated in 2012 and merits judicial relief" has this sentiment now been abandoned in favor of other unspecified work? The court should deny the NOTICE FOR EXTENSION.
